Auditions Sunday For 'Bad Seed'

Footlight Theatre will hold auditions for "The Bad Seed" Sunday at 2 p.m. at Benstead Plunge, 3331 Torrance Blvd., Torrance.

Director Herman Goodman announces that the play is scheduled to be staged in March in the round.

"The Bad Seed," written by Maxwell Anderson, based on William March's novel, tells a somber tale of inherited homicidal instincts.

The story centers around nine-year-old Rhoda Penmark who proves herself capable of committing horrifying crimes.

The part of Rhoda was cast at a previous audition. However all other roles are still open. Further information may be had by calling Goodman at DA 9-5338.

Auto Stars Argue Merits of Indy's Cement Track

Two of America's brightest young auto racing stars — Jim Hurtubise and Parnelli Jones — agree that the 150 mph lap at the Indianapolis Speedway is NOT just around the corner.

Hurtubise, in fact, holds the record — 149.592, a figure he set as "500" rookie of the year" in 1960.

Parnelli, the USAC sprint car national champion, succeeded Hurtubise as the top rookie this year at the Speedway.

"Now that the bricks on the main straight have been covered with pavement it seems that everyone assumes the 150 mph lap will be reached next May," commented Hurtubise. "Well, I don't think so."

BUMPY
"The bricks made it bumpy all right, but to break that barrier we'll have to get more speed in the corners," he explained. "The rough spot took its toll on chassis. They won't take the beating now. So, removing the bricks is a good safety feature and makes for a smoother ride, but it doesn't necessarily increase the speed."

"To reach 150 I'd have to improve only a half-second on my best lap. Believe me, that's a big barrier."

Jones, who will battle Hurtubise and Indianapolis winner A. J. Foyt Thursday night at Ascot Park in the annual Thanksgiving midwest Grand Prix, says the bricks just meant a rougher ride.

"Everything has to be perfect to hit 150," said Parnelli. "I'm talking about the car, the wind, the temperature . . . and, of course, the driver. I don't see much chance of it happening very soon."

North, South HS Students Feted

Two North High seniors and two South High seniors are semi-finalists in the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test.

Irene Hanson and Carolyn Mohr of South High and David Lippman and Gayle Perry of North High are the students.

The students share this honor with more than 15,000 in high schools throughout the nation. A total of 25,000 students took the test last March.

Cub Scouts Entertain Parents With Magic Trick Demonstration

Magic was the theme when North Torrance Cub Scout Pack 951C, sponsored by Crenshaw PTA met Nov. 10, in the school cafeteria. Cub Scouts and their parents saw a movie, "For God and Country."

The film presented a review of the world wide Boy Scout Jamboree held at Valley Forge.

FUND DRIVE
Ray Oxford congratulated the boys on their October fund raising campaign.

At the time they sold more than 1600 light bulbs to residents of North Torrance.

David Oxford received the grand prize for having the highest sales of the pack.

Awards as "top salesmen" in each den went to David Oxford, Steve Wilt, David Kupke, Jack West, Dale Townsend and Jay Sacher.

Awards for "runner up" in each den went to Stanley Clary, Bruce Johnston, Don Flemings, Larry Sacher, Nelson Cullum.

An extra prize for each boy who participated in the sale was an outing to Cubland Saturday. Receipts from the sale will pay for subscriptions to the Boys Life Magazine for each boy.
